Dear the Viet-Pol Organizing Committee,

I have completed the reviewer reports for the assigned manuscripts, please see the files attached.

I noticed that the manuscript # 117 and manuscript #140 seems to be identical; the similar reports were prepared for them.

Thank you for the inviting me to review and I wish the conference every success.

Regards,
Dung.

Comment:

The manuscript develops statistical models for predicting air temperature in Vietnam underground coal mines. The manuscript is well written, the structure is robust, and the results are reliable. The following comments can be considered to improve the manuscript's quality:

1. Abstract:

Check the use of phrase “statistical modelling” in the abstract section and keywords.

2. Introduction:

The last paragraph of Section 1 and that of Section 2 were both written to introduce the study. Consider to merge or keep one of them.

3. Methods:

The reviewer suggests to provide the non-statistical background reader with a flowchart/graph of developing predictive equations in the current study.

4. Results:

If the equations 2–5 were published in a previous work as mentioned, what is the contribution of the current study?

The justification for developing non-linear equations in Section 3 is not clear to reviewer since the linear equations appear to be good.

5. Discussion:

The first paragraph of Section 5 mentioned the most 3 influential predictors. How to come up with this statement?

6. References:

Some references are not in English—needs translation.
